

PROGRAM

April 15, 2020

Program of the day

09:00—09:15 Welcome coffee

09:15-10:30 Official tributes to Dominique Stéhelin – Chair: Corinne Abbadie

09:15-09:30 Official tribute to Dominique Stéhelin made by André le Bivic, Director of the Institut des Sciences Biologiques, CNRS

09:30-09:45 Official tribute to Dominique Stéhelin made by Xavier Nassif, Director-General of the Institut Pasteur de Lille

09:45-10:00 Official tribute to Dominique Stéhelin made by Patrick Vermersch, Vice-president for Research in Medical Biology of the Université de Lille

10:00-10:30 Naming of the Amphitheater « Amphithéâtre Dominique Stéhelin » and unveiling of a plaque in honor of Dominique Stéhelin, followed by a coffee break

10:30-12:20 Oncogenes: their discovery and beyond – Chair: Philippe Amouyel

10:30-11:10 Martine Roussel, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, Memphis, Tennessee, USA: "How Myc impacted my scientific career"

11:10-11:50 Vincent Laudet, Okinawa Institute of Science and Technology, Japan and Observatoire Océanologique de Banyuls-sur-mer, France: « From v-erbA to thyroid hormone receptors and from chicken to clownfish: More than 30 years of excitement »

11:50-12:05 short talk by a young scientist to be selected

12:05-12:20 short talk by a young scientist to be selected

12:20-14:30 Lunch break and poster session

14:30-16:05 From oncogenes to stem cells – Chair: Yvan de Launoit

14:30-15:10 Thomas Graf, Center for Genomic Regulation, Barcelona, Spain

15:10-15:50 Simon Saule, Institut Curie, Paris, France: « From chicken retina to human uveal melanoma »

15:50-16:05 short talk by a young scientist to be selected

16:05-16:30 Coffee break

16:30-17:15 Advances in molecular functions of oncogenes – Chair: Pascale Crépieux

16:30-17:10 Alain Eychène, Institut Curie, Paris, France: « From retroviral transduction to cutaneous melanoma, the journey of an oncogene »

17:10-17:50 Martine Duterque, Institut Pasteur de Lille, France : « ETS, when an oncogene becomes a family »

17:50-18:05 short talk by a young scientist to be selected

18:05 Young scientist awards

Prizes for the best short talk (1500€ for an international meeting) and the best poster (1000€ for an international meeting) awarded by Benoit Deprez, scientific director of the Institut Pasteur de Lille